Say it once.

The desk files it. The right person gets it the same day. Private facts stay private.

- Duplicate donor records, and donors who quietly stop giving

Staff retype the same note into spreadsheets, a donor list, group chats, and grant reports. Donors get called twice. A counseling detail lands in a funder report. A ride request sits in a chat.

MENTORING	A missed session becomes a call this week and a line in the quarterly report.
DONORS	María and Maria González become one record, one gift, and a call before Give Miami Day.
WORKSHOPS	A school request becomes a card with the date, the language, and an owner for every step.
COUNSELING	The note stays private. Funders see only “session completed.”
VOLUNTEERS	Hours count once. The driver can accept the same-day shift, or decline with no penalty.
GRANTS	The draft uses only numbers already on record. Any other number is removed.
NEIGHBORS	A public need is shared only if both organizations accept. No child’s name crosses.

A pendant or a bracelet.
It listens only while you choose. Move away and it files. Same rule as the desk: nothing listens until a person arms it, and no audio is stored.

1 · ARM
Nothing listens until a person does.

2 · SPEAK
The browser hears the words.

3 · FILE
Say it again: “Already filed.”

4 · ACCEPT
Nothing is sent until a person taps.

Give Miami Day
Thursday, Nov 19

Demo people, schools, and organizations are fictional. Tidepath Family Alliance and Mangrove Mews are made up. If the model is down, filing still works.
